

Canadian delegation to share LNG opportunity with Japanese business and government officials in Tokyo

Tokyo, Japan: Asian import and investment opportunities in Canada's emerging LNG industry will be shared in a special briefing to business and government officials in Tokyo later this month.

Insight into Canada's cost-competitive LNG infrastructure projects, supply agreements and investment opportunities will be provided, as well as the role of Canadian LNG in meeting global climate policy objectives and reducing emissions of carbon dioxide.

Speakers will include:

- Shawn Tupper, Associate Deputy Minister, Natural Resources Canada
- Ron Hoffmann, Alberta Senior Representative for the Asia Pacific Basin
- Dave Nikolejsin, Deputy Minister, British Columbia Ministry of Energy, Mines and Petroleum Resources
- Karen Ogen-Toews, CEO, First Nations LNG Alliance
- Bryan Cox, President and CEO, BC LNG Alliance
- Greg Kist, President & CEO, Rockies LNG
- Marty Proctor, President & CEO, Seven Generations Energy
- Jason Kearns, Director of Commercial and Business Development, Enbridge
- Keisuke Sadamori, Director for Energy Markets and Security, International Energy Agency
- Hiroyuki Mori, Director, Business Coordination Division, Japan Oil, Gas and Metals National Corporation (JOGMEC)
- Dan Allan, President & CEO, Canadian Society for Unconventional Resources (CSUR)
- Bill Whitelaw, President and CEO, JWN Energy
- A representative from Kitimat LNG/Chevron

“Demand in Asia for natural gas is forecast to rise dramatically,” said Dan Allan, President & CEO of the Canadian Society for Unconventional Resources (CSUR). “Japan and Korea are the region’s largest importers of LNG and supplies to China are predicted to soar over the next 20 years. Canadian gas producers are excited to supply Asian markets and LNG is a vital opportunity for Canada’s energy sector.”
